Word format. In addition to being available as a .pdf download, our materials are available in Word format. This allows for easy downloading and file management editing. Since the files are produced using Verbatim, they are also very simple to use.

Easy to use. To navigate our files, simply choose, View, File, Document Map pane.

Then scroll through on the left hand side to get where you are going.

A screenshot of a document navigation sidebar. The sidebar is on the left side of a window, showing a list of topics under various headings. A yellow tooltip with the word "Resize" is positioned over the right edge of the sidebar. The topics listed are:

Length. Some PF releases provide a false impression of their length by double spacing all of the commentary and evidence. All of our materials are single spaced, so you get what you pay for.

Source quality. A lot of the evidence in other briefs is stuffed with evidence from random news sites and blogs. We focus on the highest quality resources from the best think tanks. We even have cards from books on the topic.

Updates. We update our materials almost every day. It's hard to find other companies that provide more than one release.

Research quality. Our research is led by who has spent more than 30 years doing debate research and usually reads thousands of articles on every topic.

Our evidence says what we claim. You don't need to hide it from your opponent and hope the judge doesn't ask for it.

Price. Our prices are lower than all other providers -- $99 for the year/event, including full files, daily updates, instructional materials. $239 for all events. $10/student for schools with a $239 subscription.
